

Steve Horstmann

PGA Member, Head Teaching Pro & Australian Tour Player

Since early 2010, Steve Horstmann has been the Head Teaching Pro at Woodlands Golf Club, assisting both members and non-members with the development of their golf game. Steve is responsible for teaching golfers of all ages and abilities, from absolute beginner to full-time Tour Professional, with a particular passion for developing junior golfers.

Prior to his role as Head Teaching Professional, Steve undertook a three-year traineeship (2001-2004) and spent over six years playing professional tournaments around Australia and overseas. During this time, Steve also started teaching at Woodlands Golf Club and provided coaching/teaching services to various clubs/institutions around Australia, including:

- General clinics and corporate events for the Australian PGA at various schools/golf clubs around Australia (2001-2009)
- Junior clinics at the Sandringham Golf Academy (2003 to 2005)
- Junior clinics for BannLynch Golf at the Melbourne Golf Academy (2005-2009)
- “Holden Young Lions” golf coaching program across Australia (2006-2009)
- Women into Golf beginner program (2004 - current)

Steve has always strived for continuous improvement in his own golf game and in his methods of instructing others by working with one of the best golf coaches in Australia, and leading physiotherapists, sports psychologists and personal trainers. He has been diligent in ensuring he remains up-to-date on the latest methods of teaching, golf equipment and trends.
